ISSUED WEEKLY.

R. C. WALKER, Publisher.

ONE YEAR ONE DOLLAR

The Courier-Journal is still pouring salt into the Democratic wounds. As the election draws near and nearer, the Louisville Post gets madder and madder.

Professions of faith are all right in their place, and their place is at the beginning of a row of good works.

Gov. Clark, of Arkansas, is disposed to rise to the occasion and kick the prize-fighters out of his ballroom.

The usual genial, stirring Watersonian editorials of the Courier-Journal have given away to the lamentations of a Jeremiah, and the railings of a Pope.

Peace has her victories no less renowned than war, and the victory our countrymen are beginning to win over bad roads is one of the former's products.

Let us sincerely hope that the white-cappers have capped the climax and will forever and a day cease to handicap the peace and good fellow feelings of the county.

Messrs. Crisp, Vest and Wansmaker have all recently returned from Europe, and each brings word that there is no hope of the powers of the old world leading any friendly encouragement to an international monetary conference, looking to the rehabilitation of silver.

The proverb about the leopard not changing its spots does not always hold good. The present generation can very well remember when the Courier-Journal, in discussing financial affairs said:

"There facts demonstrate in a crystalline light that the single gold standard is universal instrument of enslavement."

Now that paper can not find a suitable epithet in the English language to apply to those who believed then and still believe the doctrine it then taught, and its fabled editor now calls the bimetalists "jabberwocks."

The old leopard then said: "We risk nothing in challenging any monometalist to deny that depression was and is the direct, legitimate result of monometalism. The Machiavelli who fathered, John Sherman, himself admits it."

The new leopard now calls those who then and now accepted its statement as the truth, "fanatics," "demagogues," "lunatics" and "fools."

The old leopard said: "There is not today in all the world a writer on the side of the single gold standard who would hazard his reputation as an honest man by asserting that the universal price contracting of this era is not the work of the gold standard."

Standard is a universal and all powerful instrument for the enslavement of production to capital."

The new leopard growls with the ferocity of the hungriest beast in the forest, when his old food is now thrown into his new cage.

Three speeches were made in Marion Monday. In the forenoon, Dr. Farmer, a Populist, addressed a small crowd at the opera house, and in the afternoon Mr. Charles K. Wheeler, of Paducah, and Mr. Payson, Populist candidate for Attorney General, locked horns. Mr. Payson presented the Populist doctrine in a good speech, and Mr. Wheeler followed him, and there was "music in the air." Mr. Wheeler is logical, clear and entertaining speaker and in a speech of an hour and fifteen minutes, he made a strong presentation of the Democratic cause. Mr. Wheeler is one of the coming men of the district. He has already given valuable services to his party.

Cheap Rate to Atlanta

For those who would like to visit the great Atlanta Cotton States and International Exposition, Lookout Mountain battlefield and the South, an opportunity will be afforded on Monday Oct. 28th, when an excursion will leave Princeton, conducted by Mr. Edgar W. Whittemore, who has had considerable experience in such matters, and has always brought his parties through safely and pleasantly, $22.00 pays every cent of necessary expense including a side trip on Lookout Mountain and four days admission to the Exposition. Those who prefer can simply by a round trip railroad fare, which from Princeton, is $11.00.

Those who may desire more details, can obtain them by writing to Mr. Whittemore at Grand Rivers. It is a splendid opportunity to visit the South at a light expense.

NEW SALEM.

Everybody is enjoying the very agreeable change in the weather.

Some of us would like to see a good rain, so as to enable our farmers to sow their fall crop of wheat. There is not more than 20 per cent of a crop sown at this date.

The sickness seems to be on the stand still at present, the following families needed the services of a doctor last week. Rob. Threlkeld, Geo. C. Nyer, Wm. Montgomery, Bill Tyner, T. H. McWhiter and Tom Harpending.

Miss Dora Threlkeld who has been confined to her bed for the last three weeks, we are glad to learn is improving.

The C. P. Presbytery passed off pleasantly at New Salem. There was some excellent preaching during the session. The front came like a thief in the night to many a farmer that had a tobacco crop and about 25 per cent of the 1895, crops were ruined.

Geo. C. Kirk has bought a part of still stay in old Crittenden.

Our school will begin again the 14th after a dismissing for two weeks on account of so much sickness.

Protracted meeting begun at Union church Saturday, before the second Sunday.

MOUNDS.

On last Wednesday Oct. 7, all hearts of the village were made to glow with the thoughts of a matrimonial affair, so many friends and relations gathered at the residence of the bride father Mr. J. H. Robinson's to witness the happy union, and at the appointed time when all was ready, Miss Etta Wofford and Mr. Bill Due, walked out on the floor followed by the bride couple, after a short ceremony by Rev. J. J. Franks they were made one in bonds of love. Many congratulations were extended and all seemed happy. Bird Barger is the son of John Barger, and is liked by all who know him, Miss Lucy is the daughter of Harlow Robinson, and is one of many friends and associates.

Ed Moore is able to be up again after several weeks illness.

Al and Joe Dean have built a large tobacco barn and have it full of the weed.

John Barger has been sick for some time but is convalescing.

Henry Belt stops the people when they pass his house and with a smile of unexpressed joy, points to the house and says "it's a boy."

Our farmers are putting in a large crop of wheat.

Miss Ida Swaney is on the sick list.

Prof. Moore of Forest Grove school had a spelling Friday night, it was well attended, Miss Sallie Crider of Dean's school, lent a helping hand.

Mr. Newt Weldon passed through our neighborhood Sunday.

Mrs. Al Witherspoon of Marion, has been visiting Wm. T. Terry's family this week.

It is a mystery to Harlow Robinson as to what became of the "shoes," he says something must be done.

Markham Terry of Sheidan is a frequent visitor to our neighborhood. Palhoa.

ANNORA.

Salem.

Mr. T. J. Nickell the nominee for Representative, passed through Salem Saturday, after a trip of several days in both counties and reported good prospects for a Democrat victory in November. He says he found the people ready to stand by the entire ticket and let by gones be by-gones.

Mr. Nickell is truly a "diamond in the rough" and will guard well any trust reposed in him.

On Thursday morning at 10 o'clock after intense suffering, Eunice, the bright and loving little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Hayden breathed her last;—again—

"There is hushed on earth A voice of gladness, there is veiled a face,

Whose parting leaves a dark and silent place,

By the once joyous hearth, A smile hath passed, which filled its home with light,

A soul whose beauty made that smile so bright."

For many weary days and sleepless nights the fond parents and loving friends watched over her, hoping at last to win her back to health again, but no! "Of such is the kingdom of Heaven," and the sweet, pure spirit took its flight up to our Father's home on high; and there, weeping parents, and sorrowing friends, she waits, with out stretched hands to "Gude all, till on that brighter shore The severed wreath is bound once more."

A Friend.

The Masonic grand lodge is in session at Louisville this week. The lodges of this county are represented as follows, Marion—H. A. Dodge and W. D. Cannon; Zion Hill—J. L. Rankin, Shady Grove—S. A. Fraser, Liberty—T. C. Campbell, Hurricane—A. J. Bebout.

Mr. J. C. Elder assistant cashier of the Kelsey bank, is in town, looking after some church affairs. He is one of the most tireless workers, when he undertakes anything, in the county. The Presbyterian church at this place very fortunately put him at the head of its financial work, and he is pushing this work along successfully.
On account of an old grudge, City Marshal D. C. Cooke, of Gloucester, O., was attacked in the street there last night by Elmer Donnelly, ex Night Marshal. Both men used their pistols, and when five shots had been fired both fell dead within ten feet of each other, Cooke with four bullets in his breast and Donnelly with two through his heart.
Mr. W. E. Flannery, one of the leading farmers of the Fords Ferry neighborhood, died at his home Sunday evening, after several weeks illness of fever. The interment took place at the Love cemetery Tuesday, Mr. Flannery was one of the county's best citizens and his death is a great loss to the community. He was an earnest christian gentleman, an enterprising, patriotic citizen.
County Judge Moore raised a family of lawyers and was so well pleased with his work that he joined the fraternity himself. He has three sons already carving their fortunes at the bar, and two more who will soon be on the eligible list, and on last Saturday when one was on one side of a case and a brother on the other side, the truth of the saying of Shakespeare was verified:
Do as adversaries in law, strive mightily,
But not with drink nor friends.

The Masonic lodge at this place has an opportunity to purchase a lot in the rear of their lot at a much less sum than was stated in the paper last week. Previous to a few days ago the parties owning the lot they desired had not agreed to sell it at any price, but now an agreement can probably be made, and one that will enable them to build a larger and more valuable house. That corner is the best business point in town and a handsome house there will add to the town wonderfully, and be a valuable source of income to the lodge.
The pay for plows and teams on the public roads will be in the future just as it has been in the past. While a proposition to allow each road district the use of teams so many days was voted down, as were propositions to fix the price at a less or higher sum than heretofore paid, it was the intention of the board to leave the matter just where it was previous to the last meeting of the board.
It seems that the trouble in the Hurricane neighborhood was subsided yet. Sunday while J. W. Slinger was walking through his cornfield some one stepped out from behind a shock of corn and dealt him a blow on the head and shoulder with a club; he fell unconscious for some time, when he got home he found his collarbone broken and his face very much bruised.
The burnt district of the town resembles some new Western town. Doss' place of business, a small box house, has painted across the front, "Oklahoma Saloon," just behind this is a small tent in which a pool table is being run, near that is a photographer's tent, in behind that is a show tent; all of which is on one of the best squares in town.
The residence of Mrs. Fannie Lowery, near Cresswell, was destroyed by fire Monday night of last week. All of her household goods, and fifty dollars in cash, were burned. A newspaper caught fire, it is supposed, from her pipe; she awoke and found the paper burning, and then threw a bed quilt over the flames to smother them, but the fire spread to the quilt and then the carpet and in spite of her efforts every thing burned.
The board of steward of the Marion station and Tolu circuit met at this place Monday to talk over the division of the parsonage property. The consensus of opinion was that Marion should have fifty per cent of the property and the circuit the other fifty per cent. The matter cannot be finally settled until after their first quarterly meetings.
Do not forget that little sum you owe the Press. It is not only needed but badly needed. It will not only be received but very thankfully received. Some of our readers have been getting the paper a long time without paying anything, and the sooner they settle, the sooner the Press can meet its obligations.
Judge W. H. Holt and Samuel H. Stone, the latter the Republican candidate for Auditor, will address the people at Marion, Thursday, Oct. 24. Hon. Augustus E. Wilson will also speak at this place Wednesday, October 30.
The examining trial of Lewis Slinger, charged with shooting Blakely, was postponed until December, in the meantime the grand jury will investigate the matter.
Bill Redds team took fright and ran away yesterday morning, and as the affair occurred on the principal thoroughfare of the town, it created almost as much excitement as the late fire.
M. H. Weldon has sold his groceries to J. J. Bennett and is out of business for the present. J. F. Dodge, who has been with Weldon several years, is now with Bennett.
Don't fail to examine Mrs. M. L. Barnes & Co's stock of millinery goods you will find the goods up to date in style and at very close price.
Miss Emma Daniels, niece of J. T. Elder, is very ill at the home of her brothers in this place. She has typhoid fever and her recovery is exceedingly doubtful.

Our big fire in Marion a few weeks ago embraced Dr. T. H. Cossitt's dental office, all of his instruments, machinery and materials were burned up, but he has now a new outfit, better than he had before, everything late and improved in the dental business. He guarantees all his work to be first class in every particular, and his prices are very reasonable, no more than any other dentist. He is very thankful to the people of this town, county, and the surrounding counties, for their favors in the past, and now in consequence of his losses solicits a liberal share of your patronage in the future. He will come to your house in this or surrounding counties for dental work without extra charge. His office now is at the head of the steps, on the right, over Morse's store.

Suits Filed.
Collin Pierce filed suit against John N. Lynn, Dink Lynn and Jas. Kirk asking the court for a judgment against them for $10,000 for damages. The suit grew out of the Coaling school district affair, which created considerable excitement some months ago. The petition states that the plaintiff was engaged in the official capacity of teacher of the public school when the defendants unlawfully confederated and banded themselves together with the unlawful wicked, and malicious purpose of assaulting, beating, bruising and killing the plaintiff, and did assault beat and bruise him with clubs, sticks and switches, by which were inflicted upon him severe and painful wounds, and by reason of the unlawful acts, that he was subjected to great bodily pains and suffering; that he was greatly humiliated and mortified, and his pride and feelings wounded, and his peace of mind and happiness destroyed, therefore he prays for the judgement.
Helen M. Miller sues R. A. Moore on a note of $1000; the Peoples store having assumed payment of said note. Messrs A. J. Bennett, Foster Threlkeld, P. B. Croft; G. B. Crawford and Wm. Barnett, as sureties, are made parties in the suit.

He is a thorough business man, reliable, pleasant, courteous and accommodating. He has been popular wherever he has done business, and his safe and plain business methods always make him friends. He has had experience in the drug trade himself, and he will keep Mr. A. Woods, an experienced druggist. He offers to the public all the advantages of a big stock, and complete line of the purest drugs on the markets.
Col. R. W. Foster's Will.
The will of the late R. W. Foster was probated Monday. All of his land in Kentucky—two tracts of land—is bequeathed to his nephew, Foster Threlkeld. One tract of land in Hardin county, Ill., is bequeathed to his niece, Mrs. Clara Brown.
To his sister, Mrs. Susan Threlkeld, is bequeathed the controlling privileges of all his household affairs she to be supported by her son, Foster Threlkeld.

In regard to the Tongue Supporter that I now have in use, furnished by Clement & Cruce, it supplies a long felt want by saving so much hard labor. I do not consider any tongue of machinery or wagon complete with out it.
J. C. Baker, Marion, Ky.
I will have to say that the Tongue Supporter I purchased of Clement & Cruce is the most complete and useful little device of the age.
W. H. Cardin.
Speaking of the Tongue Supporter received of Clement & Cruce, I will have to admit that it is a thing in the right place, and I could hardly do without it.
M. C. O'Hara.
Yes sir, that support is a thing of necessity, and is as handy as a pocket in a shirt. I can't do without them now.
L. F. White.
Of course there are bigger things invented, but they are few that are more useful, convenient and labor saving than the tongue supporters sold by Clement & Cruce. I consider them well worth the money. I would not take five times the amount and do without the ones I have in use.
D. N. Riley.
The tongue support sold by Clement & Cruce is a good thing in the right place.
W. H. Ordway.
I will have to say after using the support purchased of Clement & Cruce, that it is a good thing and in the right place. Every machine tongue should be supplied with it. I consider any machine tongue not complete without it.

"My experience with Hood's Sarsaparilla has been very effective. My little girl, five years old, had for four years a bad skin disease. Her arms and limbs would break out in a mass of sores, discharging yellow matter. She would scratch the eruptions as though it gave relief, and tear open the sores."

Two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla caused the eruptions to heal and the sores peeled off, after which the skin became soft and smooth. As a family medicine Hood's is the best family cathartic, gentle and effective. Try a box. 25c each.

CHAPTER XVI.

AT THE CHURCH.

The church—a handsome structure too—As has been said before, was strewn with flowers and evergreens. From ceiling to the floor.

And as the shades of night drew nigh, And the hour of eight, A merry crowd had gathered there, Afraid of being late.

Among the first arrivals were— The never would be late, And were, of course, the jolliest— Dave, Johnny Dee and Fate.

"Well, Dave, I'm glad to see you here tonight," said Johnny Dee.

"You've brought your dogs along with you, and your horn and gun, I see."

"Yes," answered Dave, "I thought I'd go around through Panther Hollow, but now I'll tell you something strange. My hounds refused to follow."

"They'd go along awhile and then come back. And while, as if in fear, I did not like to go alone, And so I came back here."

"It must have been wolves," Fate spoke up.

"I've often heard it said That dogs would never tackle them; They seem to have dread."

"Jogged if I know, Fate," Dave replied; "They're not refused before; These hounds are brave as any dogs—Got them from Lacy Moore."

Their talk was interrupted here— Although to them no thanks— For in came Norther and his wife, And also Brother Franks.

Large crowds from all the country round Were gathering all the while, And soon the church, tho' very large Was filled from aisle to aisle.

So time passed on—swiftly, of course, To Dave and John and Fate, And all the rest—and soon they heard The town clock striking eight.

Its tones had hardly died away, When, walking up the aisle, There came the bridegroom's messenger Dressed up in splendid style.

A stillness reigned throughout the house.

"That's John Winfield," said Fate. The man spoke up: "The bridegroom's here! Why should we longer wait?"

"I'm at his service," Franks replied; "Inform the bridegroom, John; For everything is ready now— Tell him to come right on."

"Just wait a short time if you please," Then spoke up Brother Riley; "For all things are not ready yet! Now are they, Brother Riley?"

"No," answered Riley, "Chat's not here, I think he'll soon be though, Suspect he rode Dock Driver's mule— He travels rather slow."

They waited there in much suspense— A half an hour, as to that— And still no messenger arrived; No news was heard from Chat.

"There must be something wrong," said Fate, "Or else he would not tarry."

And scarcely had the words been said, When in came Fent and Carrie.

"Well, Fent, what does all this mean? Where's Chat?" asked Brother Riley.

"And did he ride Dock Driver's mule?" Then added Mr. Riley.

"No, he didn't," said Fent; "He told me that he would meet with us at that old swimming hole."

"We waited, but he never came; He left the town clock toll The hour of eight, then off we went, And left the swimming hole."

But Fent was interrupted here. In tones both firm and steady, "Tell Corry now to come on in," said Brother Franks, "I'm ready."

Then Johnny Winfield left the house, And all was all at once; The whistling ceased throughout the crowd; E'en Norther held his breath.

First entered Birdie—bonnie girl— And, walking in beside her, His face suffused with happiness, Was Milton Broadway Crider.

Then Corry followed on behind— His smile he could not hide— And Josie, young and beautiful, Was walking by his side.

They went up among the dews, Where Milton had led; Then Brother Franks, with gentle mien, And solemn accents, said:

CHAPTER XVII.

BROTHER FRANKS' CEREMONY.

Wherefore, my friends, God hath ordained, Since time's first revolution, That we, his children, should employ This holy institution.

Now let us first, in gratitude, Lift up our hearts today, Invoke his blessings on us all. So bowing, let us pray,

Our father, wouldst thou solemnize Our hearts, and in thy power Descend into our midst in this Most gladly, solemn hour!

Be with us in our work, and send Thy presence over all Here bowed before Thee; let Thy love In gentle mercy fall.

And Father, bless our young friend Chat; O may Thy blessings follow His footsteps as he wanders through The wilds of Panther Hollow!

O thou who hast closed the lion's mouth, And saved old Daniel's life, Protect and bring Chat safely through, Though perils may be rife!

(As Brother Franks had reached this point, "Amen!" said Brother Riley, And, in a tone of earnestness, "Amen!" cried Mr. Riley.)

And bless poor Laura, in her grief, O may she find a friend In thee! O Father may be blessing in the end!

Now this young couple wouldst Thou like, And s'al them as Thine own— Thou who hast said that 'tis not well That man should live alone!

Keep them from sin's destructive way, And from temptation's snare, And bring them to Thyself at last, In our most fervent prayer.

Now bless us all, most holy One, In all our works, and when Life's journey's done, save us in Heaven Forevermore. Amen.

And now my friends, can any one— E'en Fent or Fate or Carrie— Now give to us a reason "why" This couple should not marry?

Silence told plainly that none objects; As you all must have seen To talk of them behind their backs— Must hereforth hold your peace.

So now, young friends, does each of you, Before this altar, vow To love each other on through life As fervently as now?

And do you promise thus to live— As man and wife of course— To have a son by John Dee, Or you get a divorce?

Can you thus promise, each of you; Just as the law demands? Then, if you can, let it be known By joining your right hands.

That's right—this ceremony's o'er; You two are one for life; For I, by Him, who rules all things, Pronounce you man and wife.

And may your life be all sunshine, No tempest, clouds, nor thunder; What God has joined together thus Let no man put asunder!

CHAPTER XVIII.

BROTHER MILEY'S SERMON.

My friends, I'll talk to you awhile, Before we all disperse, From Second Samuel, chapter eight, And thirty-second verse.

And, after I have had my talk, (Continued Brother Riley.) We'll have a song by Johnny Dee, And prayer by Brother Riley.

Now you who have your Bibles here— John Dee and Brother Fate— May turn with me and read these words:

"Now is the young man safe?" King David, weary, worn with care, Axious to learn the fate Of Absalom, his wayward son, Sat just outside the gate.

And as he sat there, all alone, The watchman came. Said he, "My lord, there comes a messenger. He runs—who can it be?"

"He bringeth tidings," David said; "And, by the way he runs, I judge he is Abimeaz, One of old Zadok's sons."

Abimeaz came running up, "What news now?" cried the king. "How is the young man Absalom? What tidings do you bring?"

"I scarcely know," the man replied; "Was down in Ephraim wood, And, hearing cries and shouts of joy, I ran where Joab stood."

"Well, stand aside!" the king exclaimed. "There comes another man— He too has tidings in his mouth. Must get it, if I can."

Then he, likewise, came running up. "Tidings, my lord, I bring! Was out on by Abimeaz— Tidings! Long live the king!"

"Well, what is it?" the king replied, As humble as a wail. "How is my son, young Absalom? Say, Cushai, is he safe?"

"Nay, my lord; would every one," The messenger began, "Who rose in arms to do thee hurt, Was just like that young man I—"

"Was in the wood?" Cushai went on, And there who should I see But Absalom, thy wicked son, Suspended from a tree?

"I ran away and told Joab. 'All's well,' the captain said; 'But why did you not take a sword And smite the young man dead?'"

"Not for the world would I do that," I answered; "I, for one, Would not so much as raise a hand Against King David's son."

"Then Joab left me standing there, And thrust him to the heart!" He ran to where the young man hung, And thrust him to the heart!

The king was grieved; he left the gate; He bowed his aged head; And as he went he said:

"O Absalom! my son, my son! That thou art dead O would to God That I had died for thee!"

My friends, you can not marvel much At David's grief and care, For was he not responsible For Joab's being there?

The king knew Joab's wicked heart; He'd seen his deeds before. Then why put Joab in command? Why trust him any more?

And yet, Joab was popular, So David chose this one To lead the host in battle 'gainst His bright but wayward son.

And when it was to take place, The deed already done— He rent his robes and cried in grief, "O Absalom, my son!"

And so it is, my friends, to-day, As in King David's time, We are ourselves responsible, To some extent, for crime.

We see the Sabbath day profaned; We see the trains go by On some excursion, north or south— We never raise a cry.

We see saloons upon our streets— We know what they denote— We pray the Lord to save our sons, And yet, how do we vote?

We see, my friends, our bright young men— True-hearted, noble, brave— Oft fall a victim, go astray, And fill a drunkard's grave!

And yet we say with dignity— Untruthfully, I own— "Oh, I can take a dram, you know Or else let it alone!"

Our daughters, too, do not escape; Their dangers too are rife! They often leave a loving home To be a drunkard's wife.

And yet our girls are smitten so! He's got, perhaps, the cash His father left—won't have it long— Or else a nice mistake!

And so she answers sweetly, "Yes," And what a full fate! A drunkard's wife! She sees it soon— But 'tis, alas, too late!

Some poet has truthfully said— This fact we need not hide— That "every girl finds heaven" all When'er she's made a bride."

The poet might have also said— That every man finds paradise, Or leaps in purgatory!

And now, my friends, I've had my say; I see that Brother Fate Is getting sleepy—so is Fate— Now are our young men safe?

A geography published in 1813 contains the following startling description of that section of our country which Charles Dudley Warner has baptized "Our Italy":

"California is a wild and almost unknown land, covered throughout the year by dense fogs, as damp as they are unhealthy. On the north ern shores live anthropophagi, and in the interior are active volcanoes and vast plains of shifting snow, which sometimes shoot up columns to inconceivable heights."

The book adds that some of these statements would seem incredible were they not so well authenticated by trustworthy travelers!

Shrew.

The shrew was originally the shrew mouse, which, when her young were helpless, would fight desperately in their defense, and so well known was the courage of this little animal, which would even go out of its way to seek an enemy at times when the most needed protection, that the word became applied to a woman who was ever ready to seek a quarrel.

The Giant's Stairway.

One of the most widely known geological curiosities in the vicinity of Cork is a series of knobs or knots projecting from the face of a cliff. There are 16 of these huge projections all together, all regularly set in the face of the cliff, one above the other, forming a series of such uniformity as to give it the general appearance of a stairway. Since time out of memory this queer ascent and its projecting "steps" have been known as "The Giant's Stairway."
